

VISITING PROFESSOR PROGRAM

Since 1973, the University of Iowa Roy J. and Lucille A. Carver College of Medicine has been providing visiting professor activities to the University of Iowa Affiliated Family Medicine Residency Programs across the state. The Visiting Professor Program is an important source of educational support in these community-based settings where family medicine residents, medical students, physician assistant students, and clinical pharmacy students' train.

As visiting professors, College of Medicine faculty present teaching conferences and participate in other educational activities at these Iowa community-based residency programs or through telehealth video technology. These faculty visits serve two purposes. They contribute to the basic training of family medicine residents and health professions students, and they provide a source of education for the faculty and other physicians in the geographic regions where the residency programs are located.

ACTIVITY SUMMARY

A summary of visiting professor activities for 2024-2025 is shown below. Carver College of Medicine faculty and staff contributed 124 teaching days to the Visiting Professor Program.

Seventy-two (72) individuals from 13 College of Medicine departments provided lectures this past year. Instruction occurred in five Iowa communities involving six residency programs and eight affiliated teaching hospitals.
